

Undergraduate Research Opportunity for a Project on Code-Switching in Cantonese-English Bilinguals

Are you an undergraduate student who is interested in seeking research experience?
Are you interested in how language experience and cultural identity can shape the way that bilinguals use their languages?

Our Bilingualism Research Group investigates the cognitive and language processing of bilinguals who consistently use their different languages in their daily lives using both psycholinguistic and sociolinguistic methods. We are currently looking for Cantonese-English bilingual students who would like to work with us on the new projects!

Requirements:

- ✓ Bilingual in both Cantonese and English; can speak and understand both languages.
- ✓ Written knowledge in Chinese characters is a plus but not required.
- ✓ Major or minor in Linguistics, East Asian Studies, Psychology, or related fields preferred but not required.
- ✓ Prior research experience not required.
- ✓ Enthusiasm for linguistics research.

Options to enroll in LINGUIST 199 Independent Study (2-4 units) or Federal Work-Study hourly pay (if eligible for FWS).

How to apply?

Fill out the RA application.

If you have questions, please reach out to
Dr. Ariel Chan at arielchan@stanford.edu

